Smash 65 Planes Near Rhine

Devastated by the implements of war, Cologne, Germany's fourth largest city, presents this view today. The famous cathedral rises out of the rubble of buildings, structurally undamaged after furious air pounding and ground battles virtually leveled the city. In the background, the Hohenzollern bridge lies half submerged in the Rhine river, victim of retreating Germans who blew up the span after they had fled across the waterway. Cologne is the largest German city taken by the Allies.

Yanks Pursue Fleeing Enemy On Mindanao

By FRANK ROBERTSON
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Luzon, March 14.—American tanks and infantry, scooping up four more communities in their invasion of Mindanao, swept today into the hills of that island's Zamboanga peninsula hot on the heels of a fleeing enemy.

Japanese resistance, which hitherto had been virtually non-existent, began stiffening as the enemy apparently sought to cover his withdrawal north of the captured San Roque and Wolfe airdromes.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's troops brought to at least nine the number of Mindanao communities captured when they took Canelar, Santa Maria, Sinonog and Pitogo villages. All these localities are situated near Zamboanga, provincial capital taken a day earlier.

IWO JIMA TAKES SERIOUS TURN IS JAP REPORT

LONDON, March 14.—(INS)—The situation of Japanese forces on the northern tip of Iwo Jima has taken an "extremely serious turn," the Tokyo radio admitted today in a broadcast quoting the Domei agency report.

The broadcast said that American marines were increasing their pressure against Jap positions "despite our daring counter-attacks and strong opposition."

Two Islets Off Iwo Occupied By U. S. Forces

By JOSEPH A. BORS
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

ADVANCED PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, March 14.—Amphibious landings by U. S. forces on two islets off the coast of Iwo were announced today as Lieut. Gen. Holland M. Smith's Marines on the northern end of that strategic island further compressed Jap remnants into ever-shrinking pockets.

The landings on the two islets—Kama and Kongaku rocks—which lie some 2,000 yards off the western shore of Iwo were expected to hasten the end of the battle of elimination going on against the Japs pinioned near Kitano Point. From these rocks, the enemy had been harassing the Leathernecks with mortar fire, and bolstering the last stand of the Iwo Japanese.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' headquarters said that the landings on Kama and Kongaku were achieved "while mopping-up operations continued in the Third and Fourth Marine Division sectors."

Standard Steel Spring Company Receives Awards

Formal Presentation Of Army-Navy E Awards Made At Plant Tuesday Afternoon

DINNER EVENT PROGRAM CLIMAX

Men and women of the Standard Steel Spring company, executives and workers paused a little while Tuesday afternoon to receive the accolade of a grateful government for outstanding achievement in the production of war materials. The company was presented with the coveted Army-Navy "E" pennant and the employees each received the "E" pin which they are wearing today on their jackets and dresses.

The presentation took place in one of the plant buildings with Army and Navy officials, executives of the company, officials of the city and county, executives of other industries, labor union officials, and about 600 of the employees present. It was not a lengthy ceremony, for the bumpy lines were waiting, but it was a ceremony packed with meaning. Boiled to its essence it was the Army and Navy saying to the workers of the plant, "well done."

Judge Braham, Chairman

Judge W. Walter Braham was the master of ceremonies and the program opened at 3 o'clock with the crowd singing "America" with the music provided by the senior high school band directed by Joseph F. Replogle. The singing was directed by William Richards. In his opening remarks Judge Braham expressed appreciation of the citizens for the plant's being located in New Castle, congratulated the workers upon their fine job, and lauded management and men for the excellent labor relations that have marked the Standard Steel Spring company plant.

Col. Robert C. Downie, chief of the Pittsburgh Ordnance district made the presentation of the production award to Thomas C. Mc-

FIRES BLAZING IN CITY OF OSAKA

LONDON, March 14.—(INS)—Fires still were blazing today in the great Japanese industrial city of Osaka, following last night's three-hour attack by Superfortresses, according to a communique from imperial headquarters in Tokyo.

Tokyo said about 90 Superfortresses took part in the raid, 11 of which were shot down and 60 damaged by Japanese fighters.

HEADQUARTERS, 21st BOMBER COMMAND, Guam, March 14.—America's new fire raids on Japan turned the heart of Osaka, the enemy empire's second city, into an inferno today as 300 Superfortresses dropped more than 2,000 tons of incendiaries which spread a sheet of solid flame over five square miles of the metropolis.

Coming in low against light opposition, the U. S. B-29s gave Osaka the same treatment which Tokyo and Nagoya suffered since the new fire technique was instituted four days ago.

Must Drive Germans Out Of Artillery Range Of Rhine Bridgehead

By MAJOR PAUL C. RABORG
(Written Especially For International News Service)

NEW YORK, March 14.—Recent German shelling of the American held Ludendorff bridge across the Rhine reminds us again of the requisites of any beach or bridgehead. Either always contains a base of supplies, and that base should be subject to a minimum of enemy interference—in short, out of range of effective enemy artillery fire.

Therefore, the first aim of the troops now fighting in the bridgehead on the east side of the Rhine between Coblenz and Cologne is to push the Germans back a considerable number of more miles, both in depth and in width. Nothing else is of major importance until it is accomplished.

The ranges of American field artillery as set forth in the last publishable table of organization—1939—gives a rough guide as to the dimensions of a successful base.

Range Of Guns

Under the classification of light artillery comes the 75 mm.—about 3-inch bore—which has a range of between three and six miles, depending on whether it was a gun (Continued on Page Two)

Hear Rumors Of German Effort For Armistice

By ARTHUR F. HERMANN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Highly qualified observers in Washington are convinced today that Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt, commander of the German armies on the western front, has sought an armistice from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower only to be met with the "unconditional surrender" terms laid down by the "Big Three."

Prevailing opinion is that Von Rundstedt offered to order his armies on the east bank of the Rhine to lay down their arms if the allies on the western front would call it quits.

It is believed that Eisenhower replied that only "unconditional surrender" of all German armies in the west, the east and the south would be accepted.

Based On Rumors

This belief in Washington is based on recurrent rumors that a Von Rundstedt emissary crossed the Rhine last week under a "white flag" to test out Eisenhower's sentiment on the German surrender in the west. It is enhanced by daily reports (Continued on Page Two)

Formosa Bombed, Japanese Admit

NEW YORK, March 14.—(INS)—Seventy Philippines-based American planes, "mostly B-24 bombers," struck the heavily raided island bastion of Formosa again yesterday, bombing a number of targets, the Tokyo radio reported today.

American Fighters Swoop Down On Nazi Airfield Just As Raid Is To Start

U. S. FORCES MAKE DRIVE ON KALENBORN

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, March 14.—A battle by American tanks and infantry was waged today five miles east of the Rhine for possession of one of the largest Nazi Rhineland ammunition dumps in the town of Kalenborn.

The Americans jumped off in a surprise assault from the steadily expanding Remagen bridgehead while American aircraft swooped down on a Nazi airfield southeast of Cologne and destroyed or damaged 65 enemy planes preparing an apparent new assault on an American-held bridge across the Rhine.

Deeper Into Saar Region

The American Third Army, penetrating deeper into the Saar region, gained a mile and one-half in fresh attacks, south of the Moselle river area southeast of Trier. The Third repulsed 11 Nazi counter-attacks and captured a number of towns. Germans were being taken prisoner by the thousands.

In one of the most spectacular air exploits of the Ninth Air Force, American fighter-bombers swooped down on a Nazi airfield near Lumburg, 55 miles southeast of Cologne, from which scores of Junker 88s, Junker 87s and Messerschmitt 109s were ready to take off on a combat mission, possibly to attack the Remagen bridgehead.

The Americans caught the enemy planes fully gassed and ready to move onto the runways. They destroyed (Continued on Page Two)

Fierce Fighting On Oder Indicates Beginning Of New Drive On Berlin

REPORT DANZIG NOW IN FLAMES

By NATALIA RENE
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW, March 14.—The Red army strangulation hold tightened today on German forces in the Danzig-Gdynia area of the Baltic Sea while German reports of fierce fighting on the Oder river indicated the beginning of a new drive toward the German capital.

Troops of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's first white Russian army swept up several new towns north-west of Gdynia, including the city of Halles, capture of which sealed the fate of all German forces on the Hel peninsula in the bay of Danzig.

Fierce Fighting

Fierce fighting raged in "the area of the outer perimeter of the Danzig-Gdynia zone," the Russian communique said.

South of Halles, among German points captured was the key railway junction of Reda, about eight miles from Gdynia. About 3,000 Germans were killed and much (Continued on Page Two)

General Chairman J. Lepere Matthews Looks For Big Increase In Contributions

INDUSTRIES ARE MAKING RECORD

When the various team captains make their report in the Red Cross War Fund Drive at the chapter house, Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, some splendid contributions are expected to be announced. General Chairman J. Lepere Matthews indicated today in industrial reports from industries show that some really worthwhile contributions are coming in. The report of the F. I. Dupont de Nemours Company, showing contributions of $786.50, is an average of $13 per employee, it is reported.

Other fine reports have been received from the Aluminum Company of America, with $3,250 reported to date, an average of $4.10 per employee; and the New Castle Line and Stone Company, with $204 is an average of $8.27 per employee. The Ferati Brick Company reports $51.50, an average of $5.70 per employee.

Chairman Matthews today called upon his workers to clean up as much of their territory as possible by Thursday afternoon in the hope that the goal of $102,000 may be reached at this time, or be in sight.

Yanks Storm Into Kalenborn East Of Rhine

By LEE CARSON
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WITH U. S. FIRST ARMY FORCES EAST OF THE RHINE, March 14.—American tank and infantry stormed into the German town of Kalenborn, five miles east of the Rhine, today and battled their way well inside.

The prize in this assault is one of the largest supply and ammunition dumps in the Rhineland.

In a dawn attack, the First Army forces, backed by tanks, crossed 1,000 yards of rough, timbered country and rushed into Kalenborn in a surprise assault.

Due East Of Honnef

Kalenborn is almost due east of Honnef, on the east bank of the Rhine, and more than five and one-half miles northeast of Remagen, where the Ludendorff bridge spans the waterway.

Ground Crews Get Plenty Of Credit

Ground Crews Worked 36 Hours Without Stopping To Get Ready For Tokyo, Nagoya Raids

HEADQUARTERS 21ST BOMBER COMMAND, Guam, March 14.—(INS)—The one-two-three punches dealt within 96 hours by American Superfortresses against Japan were possible only because the Yank ground crews worked as much as 36 hours without stopping, authorities disclosed today as the giant B-29s returned from their massive incendiary raid on Osaka.

The series of smashing blows began early last Saturday with a mighty blow at Tokyo and the later strike against Nagoya Monday.

Lieut. Col. Robert Bremer, director of maintenance on this Marianas base, declared that "operations could be carried on for the three missions inside of a week only because all concerned sacrificed food, sleep and recreation."

Bremer cited as an example of the magnitude of the task the fact that planes from Saipan alone took on one million gallons of gasoline and 32,000 quarts of oil for the Osaka mission.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(INS)—Stockholders of the Phillips Petroleum company received notification that Board Chairman Frank Phillips has voluntarily reduced his annual salary to $1.

League Of Nations Mandate System Will Be Scrapped

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(INS)—Scrapping the old League of Nations mandate system in favor of international trusteeship of strategic areas throughout the world was revealed officially today to be one of the major problems facing the San Francisco conference.

American officials who took part in the Yalta conference revealed "for the record" what has long been a matter of speculation—that the big powers will exercise joint control over dependent areas of strategic importance.

This plan renounces the League of Nations mandate system whereby Japan was able to build up extensive military defenses in Pacific islands over which she was supposed to exercise merely a helpful influence leading toward independence.

Eighth Air Force Continues Raids On Nazi Targets

LONDON, March 14.—(INS)—The United States eighth air force resumed assaults over the Reich today after a one-day lull to carry the allied air campaign into the 20th straight day.

German air raid warning broadcasts indicated that the communications centers of Hannover and Kassel were the targets of the American airmen.

The initial communique from headquarters of the U. S. strategic air forces did not name specific targets.

German warnings told of the presence of allied bomber formations over Austria and in the area north of Kiel.

SCHOOL JANITORS STRIKE

GARY, Ind., March 14.—(INS)—The strike of 130 janitors at the Gary public schools entered its second week today with no indication of an early settlement of the dispute which has kept 20,000 pupils from their classes.

The janitors struck when the school board, on advice of the Indiana attorney general, refused to give them a written contract providing for wage increases.

Mussolini Hides East Of Milan

NEW YORK, March 14.—(INS)—Benito Mussolini and his Fascist puppet cabinet have established themselves in a villa at Monza northeast of Milan in occupied Italy, the Swiss newspaper Libera Stampa said today in a dispatch reported by the OWI.

The report said that all surrounding villas had been evacuated and that traffic has been suspended along all highways leading to the Fascist headquarters. Strong Italian SS guards have been placed around the area.

You can't get butter and steaks are short, and your car needs a little gas, it's not important at least these days and soon the condition will pass. But it will not pass till the war is won so make up your mind to that, when you try to buy shirts or some nylon hose, or some shoes or a new felt hat. The reason is simple as well you know, as long as the world's in a fix, there'll be some shortages here and there and the weather is fifty-six.

PRICE CONTROL MAY BE EXTENDED TO AMUSEMENTS

O.P.A. Administrator Would Have Prices of Tickets Regulated By His Commission

By PHILLIPS J. PECK (U.S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, March 14.—O.P.A. Administrator Chester Bowles' proposal to extend price control to theater tickets, baseball games and other public amusements was described by one critic today as just "that much more red tape."

The statement was made by Sen. McFarland (D-Aiz.), a member of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to which Bowles addressed a request for the broadened O.P.A. authority. The committee is considering an extension of the price control act.

"It would just mean that much more red tape," McFarland said. "I want to hear evidence that it is very necessary before I vote to extend price control to such 'luxury' items as amusements. I am opposed to any more regulation than is absolutely necessary."

A Republican member of the committee voiced similar criticism, but declined to be quoted until the matter has been formally laid before the group. The theater representatives and baseball men also expressed doubt that the proposed new step was warranted.

Sen. Wagner (D-N.Y.), chairman of the committee, said the group would favor the proposal "if convinced that it is needed to help win the war." Wagner said Bowles will appear before the committee next week on another matter and probably will be questioned at that time about bringing amusements under price control.

Bowles said that if O.P.A. was granted the new authority it probably would freeze movie admissions at current levels and then determine whether a rollback of prices is feasible. He asserted that theater ticket prices have increased approximately 38 per cent during the war.

"In the absence of control there is no reason to believe that these inflated prices will return to more reasonable levels or that they will not increase further," he said.

or howitzer. The largest gun in the light class was the 105 mm howitzer, which had range of slightly less than six miles. There was only one field piece in the medium classification. It was the 155 mm howitzer, and its range was slightly less than six miles.

In the heavy artillery classification comes the 155 mm gun. It had a range of slightly less than 10 miles. Lastly, in the heavy classification was the 240 mm—better than nine inches—howitzer. And it likewise had a range of slightly less than 10 miles.

Must Be Ten Miles Deep

Therefore, it can be seen that a bridgehead must be more than 10 miles deep and 20 wide, with the bridgehead in the center of the width.

As of Tuesday, Gen. Hodges' bridgehead on the east side of the Rhine was reported to be about 4½ miles deep and 10½ in width. Those dimensions show the tremendous importance of greatly enlarging the present bridgehead.

Naturally, the first Nazi troops will be on the east side of the Rhine back into the river. In that effort they will fail. The second German objective will be to completely seal off the bridgehead so that it cannot function as a base, and so that American assault troops now on the east side of the Rhine cannot push their invasion farther into the Nazi homeland. Their second objective will also fail, but be prepared for desperate all-out bloody fighting.

Headquarters disclosed meanwhile that the first D-Day's total of prisoners since D-Day reached 282,903, averaging better than 1,000 a day since the landing in Normandy last June 6.

Clain, plant manager, and Joseph Booth, representative of Local 2646, United Steel Workers, (CIO), 2646. Said Colonel Downie in part, "you men and women have kept the faith. By not letting up in your efforts here you have not let the men on the fighting lines down. Your government is grateful for your patriotic work, and in behalf of the Army and the Navy I present you the production award for excellence, an award which has been given to less than 6 per cent of the plants in the nation doing war work."

Mr. McClain Accepts

Thomas M. McClain, plant manager, accepted the award for the company. He said the plant had been operated as a team with management and workers all pulling together in a common cause, and promised that the same co-operation would continue.

Commander Carl E. Egler, USNR, presented the pins to the workers, the presentation being made to Gertrude S. Paul and J. Agnes McMullen, number one and two women of the office staff. John J. Oberleitner, Angelo De Angelis and David Llewellyn, employees representative, "Wear this pin proudly," said Commander Egler. "It is to the worker what a military decoration is to the soldier who has distinguished himself." In the presentation he was assisted by Technical Sergeant Charles W. Becker, a wounded veteran stationed at Desh-Amex. His home is in Englewood, N. J.

For the employees, John J. Oberleitner, president of Local 2646, United Steel Workers, (CIO), responded. Mr. Oberleitner is very close to the war, five stalwart sons being in uniform, three in the Army and two in the Navy.

Understand Responsibility

Said Mr. Oberleitner, "We fully understand the responsibility that goes with these awards, and we intend to live up to that responsibility. Six months from now we expect to add a star to this flag for we intend to stay on the job until victory is won." Each employee then took his pin from the envelope given him and put it on, a symbol of excellence and patriotism.

The E' pennant was raised to the top of a staff by Clarence Jarrett and Chris Walker of the Perry S. Gaston Post, 343, American Legion, following the ceremony the visitors were taken on an inspection of the plant, and saw for themselves aerial bombs in the making.

Dinner At Night

In the evening a dinner was served to about 160 persons in The Cathedral hotel. Here again Judge Brastline was master of ceremonies. John J. McVane, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, invoked a Divine blessing upon the meal.

Following the service of the meal in connection with which the two sumptuous would be entirely in order, a number of speakers were introduced. Col. W. F. Rockwell, a former member of the War Production Board and a director of Standard Steel Spring, was the first speaker. He expressed his pleasure at being a part of an organization considered good enough to be honored with the Army-Navy "E".

President Speaks

R. C. Enos, president of the company, was the second speaker. He, too, congratulated the workers for their loyalty and efficiency during his remarks made the following significant statement: "The New Castle plant is more than a war plant for we expect to operate it following the war."

Other speakers were Frank C. Bell, chairman of the Advisory Board, Pittsburgh Ordnance District; Col. Robert C. Downie, Commander Carl E. Egler, Jack Gruffy, area representative of the United Steel Workers; Rev. V. V. Stanczewski, pastor of St. Philip and James church, and Louis B. Round, vice president and general manager of the Pennsylvania Power company, and Mayor John P. Haven.

SPECTACULAR AIR EXPLOIT PREVENTS ATTACK ON YANKS

strove 45 of the Nazi craft, mostly Junker 88's. At least 20 others were damaged.

Create Chaos

After the first dive-bombing attack, American planes returned to carry out striding operations and created chaos across the enemy airfield.

A 20-minute sky battle was fought over the airfield, east of Coblenz. Gains of more than 1,000 yards to the east were scored by American forces in the Remagen bridgehead area.

In an attack begun at dawn American infantry backed by tanks stormed into Kalenborn, five miles east of Homel on the Rhine and moved well into the town in the drive aimed at the huge ammunition and supply dump in the eastern outskirts.

Some 3,000 tons of shells and explosives were reported stored at Kalenborn.

Clear Honnel

At the northern junction of the bridgehead and the Rhine, the Americans cleared the Germans from the key town of Honnel, according to the communique issued at the headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, but bitter fighting was still in progress in the outskirts north of the stronghold.

At the same time an Allied spokesman at supreme headquarters disclosed that the tanks had stormed to within less than two miles of the vital six-lane superhighway connecting Frankfurt-Am-Main and Cologne. Earlier reports disclosed that communications artery was under heavy fire from American artillery.

The Allied communique revealed that the Americans in their thrust to the east had gained upwards of 1,000 yards while a second column driving northeast had advanced more than 800 yards, seizing terrain four miles from Remagen.

Headquarters confirmed earlier reports that the Remagen bridgehead now spreads over almost 50 square miles and that Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' forces already have cut the first north-south secondary highway east of the Rhine at a point east of Linz.

German forces counter-attacked almost around the entire perimeter of the bridgehead in a desperate effort to halt the first army advance. Two bitter counter-thrusts in the region of Hargarten and a second north of Hoenningen, were thrown back by the Americans.

Headquarters said that fighting is continuing in Hoenningen, at the lower end of the bridgehead.

More Crossings

Gen. Hodges rolled an unending stream of traffic across the bridgehead span and over a new pontoon bridge constructed by Yank engineers under fire, into his swelling bridgehead. The Germans said the U. S. forces had completed two pontoon bridges across the Rhine but the report of the second span was not confirmed at allied headquarters.

South of the first army bridgehead the U. S. third army made important gains up to two and one-half miles, whittling down the Nazi pocket north of the Moselle between Trier and Coblenz to a patch four miles square and clearing or capturing 12 more towns.

Fresh Gains

Front dispatches said the third army made fresh gains of a mile south of the Moselle, capturing eight towns, which brought the total of captured communities to 13, and said the occupation of two other localities was completed.

Seven towns northeast of Ediger were cleared of Nazi forces by Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's troops and four key towns northwest of Wittlich were seized.

The Germans launched a bitter counter-attack seven miles east of Trier which was repulsed by the Americans without loss of ground and the Ruwer river was crossed nine and one-half miles east of Saarburg against light Nazi opposition.

OSAKA, SECOND CITY OF JAPAN, IS FIRE BOMB TARGET

visible as much as 120 miles from the target area. Meanwhile, other fires on patrol some 150 miles from Nagoya, Japan's third largest city, said that wood smoke apparently set in Monday's assault on that city still interfered with visibility.

The raid against Osaka, some 250 miles beyond Tokyo, was the third in four days by the American air force's largest operating bombers. In once again forsaking their usual high-altitude precision bombing for low-level saturation assault, the Yanks spread their fire bombs over a 10-mile target area, some half of which was turned into a sea of flame.

Well Concentrated

"Flies were well concentrated. They didn't seem to cover as much as in the Tokyo raid, but they were very concentrated," according to Brig. Gen. Thomas Fowler of Ft. Worth, Tex., commander of the Guam-based Superforts.

"The Japanese Imperial headquarters, in a communique issued after the raid, conceded that fires were touched off in Osaka, claiming however that 'most' of the conflagrations were quickly brought under control and extinguished."

According to the enemy communique, broadcast from Tokyo and monitored by the FCC, the American assault was conducted for three hours, with the bombs dropping "blindly" through an overcast and causing "damages." The enemy also claimed that "a considerable number" of the B-29's were downed "or heavily damaged."

A later Tokyo broadcast, quoting a communique from Japanese Imperial headquarters, said that 11 Superfortresses were shot down and "about 60 more were damaged" in the Osaka raid. Allied reports disclosed that only one American plane was lost.

Despite enemy propaganda claims of losses inflicted on the raiding formations, only one Superfortress was lost in the Osaka assault, according to official announcement. On the other two raids, three other B-29's were lost; two over Tokyo on Saturday and one over Nagoya on Monday.

Nazi equipment was destroyed and captured. Southeast of Danzig, the east bank of the Vistula was cleared of German resistance between Neukirch and Vieszenhuben.

At the Oder river, on the direct route to Berlin, German radio commentators said battles raged between the Russians and the Danzig garrison. The Kuesstrin bridgehead on the eastern bank of the Oder, though narrowed down, are still in German hands as before."

Danzig, which has been under Russian artillery fire, is "raging with flames," a Russian front-line dispatch said. Below the city, the capture of Neukirch carried Soviet troops to within 14 miles of the great Baltic port.

The Germans now control less than 40 miles of the Danzig bay coastline.

A total of eight towns were taken northwest to Gdynia.

Moscow, March 14.—A great red army semi-circular push to the Baltic coast at the bay of Danzig, severing and cornering already battered German forces, seemed in the making today as Russian victories by the Danzig-Gdynia area were followed by German claims that a great new Soviet offensive had been launched toward the Baltic southwest of Koenigsberg.

A German DNB commentator, Col. Ernst von Hammer, declared that the Russians had unleashed new blows on both sides of Zintow, 12 miles from the Baltic and about 20 miles southwest of Koenigsberg.

ports from the western combat front, indicating German troops are yielding in increasing numbers in sharp contrast to their earlier "do or die" attitude.

Reports from Europe say Von Rundstedt has left his command on the western front, with a subordinate, Field Marshal Walter von Model, taking charge of German defenses against the first army's Remagen bridgehead. This might mean that Hitler learned of his armistice bid and has arrested Von Rundstedt.

Most observers in Washington believe it is far likelier that Von Rundstedt, convinced Germany is defeated, and that further fighting means only futile spilling of German blood, has gone to a meeting of army commanders and possibly with Hitler to urge capitulation.

Congressional circles hope that Von Rundstedt, if he cannot secure cooperation to end the war on the other two fronts, will return to his command and toss in the sponge regardless of terms.

Tremendous Reconstruction Problem

The longer the war lasts, the more we are impressed and disheartened by the immense destruction.

London, we know, is mostly a mournful wreck, and it is doubtless true of England in general that the half has never been told.

Many of the cherished remains of "the glory that was Greece" are gone now. Every day the newspapers print more pictures of the enormous devastation on the Continental fighting fronts. Countless thousands of fine buildings sink in ruin. The Germans seem to find a savage joy in the destruction of the cities they over-run, just as the Goths and Huns and Vandals did in ancient times.

What is going to come of it all when the war is over and people resume their normal lives?

First, perhaps, a little rest from strife and destruction. Then gradually a resumption, as far as possible, of their normal lives. Some of the wreckage, perhaps, will be left to stand forever, like the ruins of the ancient Roman Forum, for future generations to stare at wonderingly.

But sooner or later there is sure to come, in important cities, an urge for rebuilding. Much of the new construction, it may be assumed, will be so modern that it will seem like the beginning of a new and more wonderful age. To a large extent, that is what it will be. The sooner the shattered cities and stunned nations realize it, the better.

Expanding Air Mileage

That air transportation will reach unpredictable peaks in postwar years is apparent in the revelation that scheduled mileage of the airlines rose 8,435 in 1944, approximately equal to the entire system of airways in the United States 17 years ago.

At the end of last year the total mileage of the domestic airlines had reached the all-time record of 62,937 miles. Route mileage extensions in 1944 were the largest in the history of air transport in this country with the exception of 1929, when less than one-half the present airways systems were in existence and most routes were flown only once or twice daily. In contrast to the present frequent flights.

The longest of the new routes authorized by the Civil Aeronautics Board, to meet wartime needs, was 1,035 miles for northwest Airlines from Minneapolis to New York.

Girl Scout Week

Unfortunately, indeed, is the American girl who, in her teens, is not afforded the opportunity to be a Girl Scout. As American as the Washington monument is Girl Scouting. The movement is a foundation for culture, a preparation for womanhood and a means of girlhood enjoyment.

We have seen a generation or more of Girl Scouts grow to maturity and we know that Girl Scouting is one of the most invaluable of our country's assets.

Much of the credit for that condition of affairs is due the fine women who have assumed the leadership of Girl Scouts. These women, gifted with an inspiring love of girls, relinquish a great deal of personal time to carry on their work. They are endowed with a deep-seated desire to be of service to their neighbors, their community and their nation.

We need more leadership. Perhaps this may be the right moment to appeal for help. Splendid as is the job now being done, it could be multiplied many times if more trained, willing leadership were at hand throughout the nation, it is emphasized by those now in the work.

Realistic Appraisal

Consistently good war news from Europe has set off another upsurge of optimism which may prove to be anything but realistic.

Much of the loose comment is fanned this time not by high Army sources, as it was last fall—"We'll win the war against Germany this year"—but to competition among the microphone salesmen and other "authorities" for top position as bearers of glad tidings. The national policy of sparing the people the bad news, as if they were spoon-fed civie atoms in a totalitarian state, aids the game of these Pollyannas.

The informed people who last fall weighed all the elements in the situation and were right, now see that the Germans, while certainly fighting a losing war, are by no means incapable of prolonging it until summer. They can select a place and a time for making a terribly costly stand east of the Rhine.

In Italy, some 27 German divisions are holding the American Fifth Army—an army which has made the longest sustained land advance in the history of warfare and is the equal of any now fighting anywhere on either side.

The German internal political factor is debated by experts, whose predictions run from speedy demoralization and collapse to years of fanatical guerrilla warfare. But forced labor is making the most of limited raw material, and the Nazi leaders seem to have the people as well as the professional generals in hand. Anything can happen, of course, but it is a safe assumption that the "experts" do not know when or where.

More Than Talk Needed To Create Jobs

Almost every day some politician tells the nation there must be 60 million jobs after the war—or else. Those who make such assertions have no adequate idea how to create and maintain that many jobs. They say if industry doesn't do it, government will. Government can't do it except by wartime spending which is maintained by wartime taxation and bond selling. Such a policy cannot continue indefinitely without destroying all savings, all competition, and all industry.

Permanent jobs and earnings, which maintain government, come only from industry that can operate at a profit. Therefore, instead of peddling hot air and promises to the effect that government will maintain some mythical number of jobs, which the people themselves would have to be taxed to death to pay for, the politicians should be humping themselves to see that private enterprise is given every possible encouragement to go ahead and expand and employ the greatest number of men at the best wages, in order to roll up production and employment to the highest possible level.

Government should not invade the province of industry, as is now contemplated by many of the political planners. If our lawmakers really want to create jobs instead of a totalitarian form of government, let them concentrate on the American idea of encouraging private enterprise to do its utmost under fair and reasonable public regulation and taxation. Let them quit doubting the American system which has broken all production, employment and taxpaying records in history.

Shortage of food is expected to bring final defeat to Germany. Apparently on the theory that eventually Germans will get fed up on starvation.

WASHINGTON CALLING

by MARQUIS CHILDS

Restoring Greek Economy Costly Job

ATHENS, March 14.—The estimate given for the cost of restoring Greek economy to something like working order is $600,000,000. The question that follows immediately is—who is going to put up this sum for a small country whose exports were at best meager before the war? The country today is almost at a standstill. Under a formal agreement to go into effect in April UNRRA is coming in to try to supervise the rudimentary task of getting food and clothing to the people.

Already more than a hundred UNRRA employees are working in Greece, and shipments of food are coming in. Greece is the first country to issue an invitation to the United Nations organization, which under its charter, can operate only on the request of a government desiring assistance.

Trade Beginning

Ray Hendrickson of UNRRA, who signed the recent agreement, has just made a tour of the provinces. In the course of which he saw some small signs that trade was beginning again. Farm produce was being offered for sale in the markets of small towns at prices that were not too exorbitant. At least they were not as bad as prices in Athens where the fantastic inflation initiated by the Germans as part of a deliberate economic sabotage is far from being under control.

Boys on the street offer you ten million drachmas for one cigarette. That is money printed under the Germans and now invalidated. It is, however, one of the confusing and disrupting heritages left behind by master saboteurs.

Other inheritances are perhaps less tangible, but no less troublesome. In the course of the last few years, in the ELAS uprising, many people of property lost their lives or suffered terribly. Hostages who were not tortured and killed suffered fearful hardships. Therefore, quite understandably, the hatred of those on the political right is now directed at Leftists who killed their relatives and friends.

During my brief stay in Athens I saw a riot in which a crowd of several hundred stripped the clothes off three young men and would have done greater violence if the civil police had not interfered. An English-speaking member of the crowd told an American bystander that the three were Communists who had participated in the work of the ELAS excesses in the city during the stage.

Among the British, who had the unpleasant job of repressing the rebellion, there is deep resentment of the attitude expressed by important sections of the press both in America and England. If I heard one officer talk about "Armchair Tories" the thousands of men, women and children who died in the ELAS excesses in the city during the stage.

They were especially resentful of the criticism by the British press. It was a highly disagreeable job and one which they did as professional soldiers as quickly and as unmercifully as possible. Once the shooting started—and from all evidence it was the civil police who first started firing on the unruly crowd—then the violence spread. The troops had no choice but to try to put an end to what was rapidly developing into civil war.

Many of the officers and men had served in combat for more than four years. The attitude especially resented by those who had this nasty duty was the attitude of the "holier-than-thou" which found expression in the press on both sides of the Atlantic.

"Let that damned editor come over here and see if he can keep these people from killing each other off," was the way one officer put it to me. I think I can appreciate, even after a very brief stay in this troubled capital, how he felt.

The blame is not to be put on any one group nor on any one of the Allies. We must all try to know and understand the complexities of our world, and to speak not out of easy prejudice but out of knowledge and understanding.

GUNS AND CHILDREN

Boys like to play with guns. If they cannot get anything better, a stick will do for a gun. If they see a real gun, they grab it in a jiffy.

Loaded guns should never be kept around the house. Most accidents seem to happen with guns which were thought to be empty.

If you have a gun in the house, make sure that it is empty right away.

Teach Dick how to handle it. Be sure that it is empty and keep it that way.

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 7:07. Sun rises tomorrow 7:11.

Success in life depends upon two things, luck and pluck. Luck is finding time out to pluck.

Even a wife doesn't select her husband's clothes. She picks his pockets.

A politician is one who shakes your hand before election and your acquaintance afterwards.

NON-PARTISAN

"Who's that man over there wading the lawn?" a visitor asked the small boy.

"He's my grandfather," the kid answered.

"On your mother's or your father's side?"

"Oh, he sticks up for both of them," the boy replied.

A popular girl is one who gives a date-to-date existence.

No matter how long a doctor has been treating patients he is still practicing.

Do all you can to help the Red Cross. It is doing more for our men at the front than can be told.

Don't ration courtesy.

A local man who works pretty hard has learned a new trick that he wishes to pass along to other men.

"If I come home in the evening and tell the wife how good I feel, right away she begins planning something—show or going to call on friends," he explained.

"I get home, and I don't care to go out. I begin telling her how tired I am and that I don't feel so hot. It works, too."

It's always a good thing to when your mouth shut unless a policeman asks you something.

Whether you bet or not, losers are easier to pick than winners.

RECORD CLIMB
A parachutist story:
A parachutist was dangling forlornly from a big oak tree.

"I was trying to make a record," he shouted to a farmer below.

"Reckon yuh did it, stranger," observed the farmer. "You're the first man in these parts to climb down a tree without be clumb up fast."

The fellow who invented veils probably didn't care for kissing.

"Buy a subscription to—, mister," a boy said to man who answered the doorbell.

"I suppose you are working your way through college," said the man of the house.

"No, just helping my mother through welding school."

What you get out of opportunity depends upon how you make use of it.

Pleasure seems to have been invented as something for the reformers to stop.

If you go to bed with a clear head, you probably will get up in the morning in the same condition.

Physics puzzle for the quiz kids: Why does a woman walking on a wet pavement spot the back of her stockings when a man doesn't spot his pants?

Don't complain about food rationing. Isn't nice to talk with your mouth full.

A young sailor was about to become engaged to a girl. "There is one thing I want to get off my chest," he confessed.

"You just tell me about it, my boy," she replied.

"It's a tattooed heart with the name Mabel on it," he told her.

MISUNDERSTANDING
A man went to a church where they burned incense. He said to the usher, "I smell punk."

"Never mind," said the usher, "sit back in the corner, and no one will notice it."

The war excuses many things, but how is victory hastened by making rayon stockings so they droop?

Note on portraits: Pretty faces make a smile attractive, but a put-on smile that looks artificial is more like a snarl.

The World and the Mud Puddles

WHY NOT A REAL INSPECTION

Imposition of prison sentences on six key men of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bally Combined Shows, on charges of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the tent fire which cost many lives, illustrates again a peculiar trait—to substitute penalties after the fact for preventive inspection. It must be assumed that the penalties imposed on these circus officials is in accord with justice. Unfortunately, no punishment can restore the lives lost and compensate for the injuries inflicted in this disaster.

A similar procedure was followed in the case of the fatal holocaust in a Boston night club. It was followed in such cases years ago, the General Slocum boat disaster and the tragic Iroquois theater fire in Chicago.

It is not too much to say that conscientious inspection and strict enforcement of legal requirements in all probability would have prevented all of these tragedies. But inspection, even when honest, tends to become perfunctory and merely routine; certain formalities are followed without regard to the fundamental purpose of protecting life and property. In the General Slocum case, for example, it was discovered after the disaster that the boat was equipped with life-preservers which sank instead of floating; certainly any genuine inspection would have disclosed this fact. In the Boston holocaust it was found that fire regulations had been persistently violated or ignored. When inspection is tainted with bribery or self-interest, or when it is indifferent or incompetent, it is worse than no inspection, because it gives the public a false sense of security.

One reason for the failure of inspection to function, of course, is that inspectors generally are chosen on the basis of politics instead of fitness and integrity. It would be a simple matter of justice and some assurance of protection to the public if inspection officials who fail in their duties were compelled to share punishment with other responsible for disasters involving loss of human life.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

HOMEWORK BURDENS

I still get letters from parents telling of the score or more of arithmetic sums or long lists of words to spell which children as low as the third grade are assigned as home work. Some parents write of these young children spending two or three hours a day over this work. This is outrageous! Here is a sample letter from the mother of a child in fifth grade:

Practically our whole evening is taken up with homework, with the result that the child goes to bed crying because the work is not finished.

"My son is an omnivorous reader. Up to this time he has gone to the library for books, but since school has begun he has had no time for that."

He also takes trips to the museum, and makes airplanes and other things with his friends.

A Mother's Opinion
"I do not approve of giving young children school work to do at home. I think these hours are needed for outdoor play in good weather and for reading and other interests when the weather is bad. Also I like to have an opportunity for the family to read or play games for a little while before the child has to go to bed."

She wished to know what I think about homework in the grades.

Where a bit of home work can be done in half an hour or so and results in agreeable companionship with the parents, and good habits of some brief, daily mental exercise, it might be good. Good results with slight danger of the usual evils might be attained in the grades, from third to sixth, if instead of work required to be done at home and handed in at school, it were of a voluntary nature aimed to supplement the school work and stimulate the child to read at home for pleasure.

The child who has trouble with the basic number facts might be urged to practice on a few of these, or the child slow in spelling, to learn at home to spell three or four words easier than those he is supposed to spell at school; or slow in reading, to read at home from interesting materials easier than his school readers.

A Good Plan
Such a plan would not entail the emotional burdens of the traditional kind of homework for young children, nor interfere with their free time for recreational reading and activities in those homes where resourceful parents inspire their children to engage in such. Moreover, it would satisfy those parents who believe their children should have some regular mental practice at home.

Of course, the child with wide interests, like the child the mother wrote about, may be the very one whose parents should see that he practice at home on a few skills such as in spelling and number work, if he shows the need of them. Also the average youngster in the grades might profit from a brief period of daily reading and study at home in preference to the hours usually spent at home in watching programs on the air.

Besides, the child who has had some such practice in his earlier years should, in consequence thereof, be the better prepared to do home-work faithfully when in high school. The most justifiable criticism of homework, even in high school, is of the excessive amount of it.

Miss Markel will promptly mail personal answers to readers enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Hearings Forseen On Bretton Woods Plan
Limit May Be Placed On Farm Subsidies
Social Security For Farmers Is Forecast

By HELEN ESSARY
(Central Press Columnist)

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Hearings are expected to get under way within the next two weeks on the administration's legislation for United States participation in the Bretton Woods monetary agreements for post-war economic stability.

The legislation faces strenuous opposition in both the House and Senate, with the great unknown quantity the stand to be taken by Republicans.

Chairman Brent Spence (D) of Kentucky of the House banking committee, plans extended hearings with Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau the chief witness.

Principal opposition comes from the American Bankers association.

Limit On Payments
Congress is expected to limit federal subsidy payments to farmers in the coming fiscal year to $845,000,000 spent for that purpose this year by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Despite farm bloc pressure, the House probably will go along with Senate-approved legislation containing that figure.

The big battle will come when the RFC appropriation bill reaches Congress. More than half a billion dollars a year is now being paid out by RFC in roll-back subsidies on meat, butter, cheese and flour.

The Agriculture Department and Social Security board are working on a plan to include farmers under social security, each farmer paying Uncle Sam 7 per cent of his net income. Hired hands would pay 6 per cent, with their employers contributing the additional 1 per cent. Congress seems favorable to the idea.

The press gets a definite "assist" in checking the scare buying which threatened to put coffee back on the ration list.

The rumors started early in January that the beverage soon would be rationed again. OPA and War Food officials denied the rumors but the panic spread.

Finally, the three big press associations agreed to concerted action; filed emphatic stories that supplies were ample and that rationing was not in sight. Scare, buying stopped almost at once.

Huge Veteran Mail
Members of the armed forces receive and send the staggering total of seven billion, 744 million pieces of mail each year. This means they receive seven and send six pieces each week.

Thanks to their franking privilege, they saved 91 million dollars per year in mailing costs. It costs the Army and Navy about 25 million dollars annually, however, to transport mail to the armed services.

The nation's home front will be taking orders from the Army now until Japan is defeated.

Washington insiders see the hand of Maj. Gen. Lucius Clay behind the recent orders emanating from War Mobilizer James Byrnes' office. Clay nominally is deputy war mobilizer, but is regarded in capital quarters as virtually top man.

Despite advancement of the midnight curfew as a method of saving coal, manpower and transportation, reports are current that General Clay sponsored the order because of alleged gripes from fox-hole and front line troops.

There was honest reason for it though I viewed it with a grin.

And wondered oft why grandpa tickled his napkin 'neath his chin.

Though the father and the mother wore them loosely on their knees.

Grandpa's napkin filled his collar just as snugly as you please.

It stayed just beneath his whiskers and it billowed on his chest.

Why he always wore it that way, as a boy, I never guessed. Once I questioned him about it, I remember his reply:

"When you've lived as long as I have you will know the reason why."

There was honest reason for it and today I know it well. Spots on gray neckwear, front of shirt and coat lapel.

When your hair is turning silver little, careless ways begin; Yes, my dears, that's why your grandpa wears his napkin 'neath his chin.

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

In a recent address Byron Price, director of censorship, called attention to the fact that the Bill of Rights gave us not only privileges but also duties.

As an example he used the case of a man who had been arrested for hitting another fellow during an argument.

The defendant asked the judge whether, in a free country, a man didn't have the right to swing his arm.

Whereupon the judge, sentencing him for assault and battery, replied: "If a free country, your right to swing your arm ends where the other man's nose begins."

There, to my mind, is a pretty good rule for human behavior. "Your right to swing your arm ends where the other man's nose begins."

Unless, of course, the other man sticks his nose out too far.

Now don't take me too literally about that, however.

Sticking your nose out seems to be also an unalienable right bestowed upon us. I haven't found anything about it in the Bill of Rights, but I do find it in almost every city, town and village, and the smaller the place, the farther the noses seem to come out.

I read an article the other day about a country editor out in Missouri who prints all the news, good or bad, that happens in his community.

That is so different from what most country editors do that he was asked why he did it.

This is what he said: "Well, you know in most places there are a lot of gossips. If Jim is seen out late with Jane, right away the scandal mongers get busy and make a mountain out of a mole hill. Pretty soon there is nothing left of the real facts and two lives are ruined."

Isn't it much better to get the truth and print it than to let the gossips go around and spread a lot of dirt?

"As long as people are more interested in their neighbors' wrongs than in their own rights I think it's my duty to tell the things as they happen right out on the open."

I agree with that editor. He runs a newspaper and a newspaper has a right to tell the news.

But if you don't run a newspaper then you have no business sticking your nose into other people's affairs just for the pleasure of dirtying your neighbors' reputation.

Swinging your arm farther than the beginning of the other fellow's nose is bad enough.

But swinging your tongue into his character and his private life is far worse.

A kid asked the teacher the other day: "What's the difference between 'I feel good' and 'I feel well'?"

Whereupon the teacher replied: "You feel good when you

State Department Asks More Funds For Foreign Ambassadors

American Diplomats Get Much Less Than Those Of Other Governments: Lose Money On Job

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(INS)—It costs money—lots of it—to be an ambassador and the state department's request today for $500,000 in "representation allowances" for 1946 indicates some lavish entertainment in foreign capitals and listening posts next year.

But, according to state department testimony published by the House appropriations committee, the $500,000—a 100 per cent increase over 1945—isn't much and some American envoys will have to shell out with an eager hand to make ends meet.

In time-honored fashion, the appropriation is well under comparable outlays given foreign diplomats by their governments. One state department official frankly admitted that the $500,000 is "only about 10 per cent of what we actually need to enable officers to do what we want them to do."

For example, he quoted Prof. Carlleton J. H. Hayes, former U. S. ambassador to Spain as saying that he had a personal deficit of some $10,000 above his $3,000 entertainment allowance.

Indicating that diplomacy is still a rich man's game, here are some of the entertainment funds requested for U. S. embassies:

For the ambassador to Argentina—this post is still vacant—$3,400; Madrid, $10,000; Lisbon, $7,000; Stockholm, $7,000; Rio De Janeiro, $5,400, plus $6,000 for subordinates; Mexico City, $9,000; Moscow, $11,000; London, $13,000; Paris, $12,900.

Assume War In Europe Will Be Over Before July

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(INS)—Despite official White House denial, the budget bureau was disclosed Tuesday to be basing its appropriation requests for the next fiscal year on the "assumption" that the war in Europe will be over by July 1.

Confirmation of this policy, previously reported by International News Service, came from no less an authority than FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and the House appropriations committee.

It was revealed when the committee, in one of its rare departures from the "economy" line, restored to the federal bureau of investigation 1946 appropriation $2,829,008 cut out by the budget bureau. Addition of that amount gives the FBI $35,829,008—the sum estimated as necessary on the basis of a "one-front war."

Hoover flatly told the appropriations committee that the "one-front" estimate was called for by the bureau budget, and that although he submitted an alternative request for $39,671,810, based on a "two-front war" after July 1, the bureau approved the former.

Poor Digestion? ☐ Headachy? ☐ Sour or Upset? ☐ Tired-Listless? ☐

Do you feel headachy and upset due to poorly digested food? To feel cheerful and happy again your food must be digested properly.

Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable.

Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly—often in as little as 30 minutes. And, you're on the road to feeling better.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any drugstore. Only 25¢.

Pontoon Bridge Is Built Under Great Difficulty

By LEE CARSON
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

A CROSSING SITE ON THE RHINE, March 13.—Delayed—Nearly 200 pontoons, buoying up a second crossing of the Rhine, floated today on water that was mixed with the blood of 14 American combat engineers who were killed in the exploding inferno of German fire in which they helped build the bridge.

Throughout one shell-torn night and until dusk the next day the Americans slowly pushed the badly-needed pontoon span across the Rhine, working through artillery fire, machine-gun spray and death and destruction which was hurled down from German raiding planes.

These seven were killed as they were moving down to the river bank to begin work. The other seven died when German mortar shells and 150 MM guns cut loose on engineer crews who were building sections of the bridge.

Crane Knocked Out
The engineer battalion commander, Lt. Col. David Perrin of Claremont, Pa., said that "a combat engineer isn't envied by anyone."

Lt. Rhea said the Germans knocked out one of the cranes, used to lift the pontoons into the water, when the operation first started, and then got another the next morning.

Riding on bulldozers, the engineers moved down to the riverbank to clear the approaches for the bridge, but they had to withdraw in the face of vicious German artillery fire which whipped down at them from the hills across the river.

They waited for a time and then tried again. For some reason, the Germans held their fire.

The engineer battalion set to work, racing against time, and in three hours had prepared 150 feet of the bridge.

Then the Germans cut loose again with their big guns and geysered the river with a thousand old faithfuls of death. But this time there was no withdrawal. The bridge had to be finished.

IMPLICATED SELF, INSTEAD OF OTHERS

PITTSBURGH, March 14.—(INS)—Alfred Barksdale of Chatham, Va., when appearing before police, couldn't implicate any of the men who beat him up, but he did implicate himself. It was pointed out today by Pittsburgh authorities.

When questioned, Barksdale, couldn't provide a satisfactory excuse as to why he should be wearing a corporal's uniform. So detectives called a huddle with the FBI, with the result that the "corporal" was arraigned before a United States commissioner on a charge of evading the draft.

Following submission of the report, retailers must receive written permission from the WPB tin, lead and zinc division, Washington, before placing their old stock on sale.

WPB Cracks Down On Black Market Tin Manufacturing

CLEVELAND, March 14.—(INS)—The War Production board today called attention to government restrictions aimed at curbing black market use of tin in the manufacturing and retailing of costume jewelry, novelties, toys and games.

In order to sell non-essential tin products previously stocked, it was pointed out, the retailer must file with the WPB an inventory of all merchandise, covered in List A of order M-43, in his possession as of March 1. The report of inventory must include a description of the articles to be sold, from whom they were bought, and the date of purchase, it was stated.

Following submission of the report, retailers must receive written permission from the WPB tin, lead and zinc division, Washington, before placing their old stock on sale.

Violators of the order, the WPB warned, are subject to the full wartime penalties provided by law.

Crucifixion Case Publicity Hoax

CHICAGO, March 14.—(INS)—Chicago's weird crucifixion case, in which Fred Walcher, 46, was nailed and fashed to a cross, apparently was a publicity hoax in which Walcher willingly cooperated. Police Capt. Patrick O'Connell said today after the victim was subjected to a lie detector test.

O'Connell said results of the test indicated Walcher was endeavoring to arouse public interest in his Utopian program for perpetual peace through "mental attack" and conceived of the crucifixion as an admiral mode of publicizing the movement.

Wallace Cites Need Of Civilian Flying To Ease Deflation

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(INS)—Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace, in his first appearance before Congress since his confirmation for the cabinet post, warned today that "drastic deflation" is around the corner in postwar civil aviation.

Testifying before the Senate commerce committee in behalf of legislation for government financing of peacetime aviation, Wallace, however, described civil flying as "a most important factor in the post-war drive for economic expansion and full time employment."

"Our 19 billion dollar aircraft manufacturing industry must, like all munitions industries, undergo very drastic deflation," the ex-vice president said.

The shock of that deflation, he declared, could be "eased" and the industry started on an "upward trend" if "we act promptly for constructive civil purposes on the vast store of pent up technical knowledge developed by the war."

With Victory Gardeners

By CHARLES G. LINDNER
City Chairman State Council of Defense

European military and civilian requirements, and Pacific needs are going up. Experts say inventories by the end of this year may slip below desirable levels.

Victory gardens will be more necessary this summer than ever. Half of the canned vegetables for civilians must be home grown. This is due to three basic causes: (1) longer military supply lines, which must be kept filled constantly; (2) food losses in battle; and (3) the Australian drought, which reduced the share that country could ship to our Pacific forces.

Our gallant U.S. service men in the Pacific area are not only fighting our battles; but they planted over 15,000 acres of vegetables last year and raised much of the green vegetables they needed. This alone should inspire us to fill our quota of 20 million victory gardens asked for by our president this year.

Plan your garden now, which is merely a method of worrying before you plant instead of after it. There are a certain number of vegetables which are a "must" in every garden, be it small or large.

A simple plan for a 20 by 30 foot garden should include the following: most essential and easy grown vegetables. They are to be grown in 20 foot rows running north to south is possible to receive an equal amount of sunshine.

Plant two 20-foot rows of onion sets (about 1-lb. of sets); one row of lettuce, and one row of radishes. All of the foregoing to be spaced one foot between rows. Two rows each of beets and carrots, spaced two feet between rows. Two rows of green beans and two rows of yellow beans, spaced two-and-one-half feet between rows. Two rows of tomatoes, eight plants to the row and three feet between rows. And about a half row of Swiss chard, and eight sweet pepper plants and you have a basic garden that will give you best returns.

Unions, lettuce, radishes, beets and carrots should be planted as soon as soil can be worked. Beans, tomatoes and other vegetables should be planted after soil has warmed up, about Decoration Day. Peas, corn, cucumbers, squash and such other vegetables are not profitable on a small plot of ground and should only be considered after the planting suggested above.

It is said not to be unusual among Eskimos of Repulse Bay for friends to exchange wives occasionally for a week or two.

Still Some Nazi Groups In Coast Towns Of France

Military Spokesmen Decline To Hazard Guess On How Long They Will Hold Out

By KINGSBURY SMITH
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, March 14.—Military spokesmen at Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters declined today to hazard a guess as to how long the many thousands of Germans trapped in the seacoast pockets of France will be able to hold out.

The fate of these Nazis, bottled in such spots as St. Nazaire, Lorient, Dunkerque and Bordeaux, boils down to a question of military strategy, official sources said.

As the situation now stands, they pointed out, the Germans are being successfully contained and constantly harassed. While they don't eat too well at times, they are not starving—thanks largely to their foraging raids on the neighboring countryside.

Might Hold Out Long Time
If not heavily attacked they might hold out indefinitely and the Nazis themselves would like to sit out the remainder of the war so they might return to the Reich heroes, Allied spokesmen said. For this reason, the Nazis do not welcome the frequent Allied artillery barrages.

The enemy forces, estimated to include 100,000 men, were pictured as short of cigarettes but distilling their own liquor to bolster their nerve. Of the total number, 65,000 enemy troops were said to be caught in the pockets of St. Nazaire and Lorient.

Occasionally a Luftwaffe plane gets through with mail or medical supplies. Allied authorities are confident they can liquidate the enemy pockets any time they feel it wise to do so—but the Germans there are militarily harmless under the present situation.

ERNIE PYLE says: "This is your Red Cross"

"Something Fine to Behold"

By Ernie Pyle

EVERYWHERE I went there was the American Red Cross giving its services to our fighting men. It is something fine to behold, this touch of home which the men and women Red Cross workers are able to bring to our troops abroad.

When the Red Cross opens up in a new war theater, its growth has to be as fast as the growth of the Army. The way clubs spring up overnight in newly occupied centers, the way restaurants and dances and movies and clubmobiles and doughnut factories mushroom into life all over a new country, is something that still astonishes me.

Right in the field with their regiments are the Red Cross field directors, who act as a link between the soldiers and their homes.

In most of the hospitals, doing the recreational and welfare work for which the nurses can spare so little time, are the Red Cross hospital girls. With every medical unit are countless quantities of the indispensable blood plasma made from the voluntary blood donations of the American people.

Our soldiers and sailors abroad literally worship the Red Cross, and I personally can find nothing but praise to say about its program as I saw it in operation.

IMAGINE THE ADDED HORROR OF THIS WAR WITHOUT THE RED CROSS

Thousands would die from loss of blood where they fell. This is the first war in which the folks at home actually saved lives at the front. Surgeons General of the Army and Navy say blood plasma has been the foremost life-saver in this war. The Red Cross, through your blood donations and money, has collected and distributed millions of pints to the medical services.

Thousands of War Prisoners would be forgotten. That they have not been abandoned to their fate in this war is the achievement of your Red Cross, which has constantly reached them, even in Japan, with morale-building parcels of food, extra clothes, medicines, cigarettes and other comforts. More and more of your dollars are urgently needed to keep our men in life, health and hope until they can be brought safely home.

SUPPOSE THE RED CROSS HAD NEVER BEEN CREATED

There would now be no Army of Mercy to save and comfort the millions of lives wrecked or dislocated—all over the world—by earth's most destructive war.

No millions of pints of blood would have been collected for life-saving plasma.

No millions of heartening, sustaining food packages would be packed and delivered to despondent Allied war prisoners.

No emergency messages from loved ones would reach our worried fighters at the front.

No giant hand of compassion would be forever outstretched to help the victims of pestilence, flood, famine and hurricane.

Only unthinkable chaos would be left in the wake of battle and catastrophe—if the RED CROSS' hand of helpful mercy were withdrawn! It is up to YOU to give—in gratitude that your RED CROSS was created—and grew to keep pace with the world's anguished need.

The need is stupendous—no matter what turn the War may take. So the job the RED CROSS can do depends on your giving now—giving more than ever before.

Navy Conferences Mean Stepping Up Of Japan Bombing

New Blows In Making; Will Probably Follow Naming
Of Overall Commander

By JOHN A. REICHMANN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Stepped up bombing attacks on key Jap-held positions indicated today there will be little lag in putting into force decisions on the prosecution of the Pacific war arrived at in recent consultations with high command here.

It was believed by many well-informed observers that new surface strikes against the Japanese may be made as soon as naval units engaged in the Iwo Jima bombardment are ready for new duties.

The fact that new blows are in the making was clearly indicated by the recent visits to this capital of Admiral William F. Halsey, commander of the western Pacific task forces, and Admiral of the Fleet Chester W. Nimitz. In addition it is believed that many other unpublished conferences have been held with high British officials engaged in the eastern operations.

Perhaps MacArthur
Probably one of the first steps to be taken will be the appointment of an overall commander for the entire Pacific area to coordinate blows from the east and south by all available allied forces. General Douglas MacArthur, whose Philippines campaign is now well under control, has been most often mentioned for this post.

However, it is possible that public naming of a supreme commander, to parallel the command held by General Dwight D. Eisenhower in Europe, will wait until the first blows of the campaign are about to be struck. This would be the case particularly where the designation to tip the Japs off as to whether it is to be primarily a naval or land operation.

Possible Steps

Several steps have been suggested on the American side. They are:
1. A direct invasion of the Jap home islands which would drive the Tokyo government to Manchuria before it had an opportunity to move its industries out of bombing range of the Superfortresses.
2. Occupation of one or more of the Ryukyu islands.
3. A landing on Formosa.
4. One or more landings along the China coast or in Indo-China to deny Japan vitally needed supplies in Indo-China and Thailand.
Coordinated with these blows, the British, who now control the Indian ocean, can also be expected soon to attempt to retake their powerful naval base at Singapore. Thence she can step up her contribution to the Pacific war.

SPOTLIGHT Of Today

OSAKA

(International News Service)
Osaka, Japan's second largest city, burned today in the wake of American B-29 bombing and will doubtless burn again before the empire of Nippon goes down in defeat.

It is a city which poses peculiar problems to the incendiary raids by Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay's Superfortresses. Intersected by canals and branches of the Yodogawa river, Osaka has the benefit of natural fire breaks. Partially destroyed by fire in 1909, it was rebuilt with wider streets and more substantial buildings.

But, as reconnaissance photographs proved, it is still highly burnable, with many wooden houses and bridges and second-rate factories. Its population of 3,500,000 includes a high percentage of war workers, Japanese who toll in the city's shipyards, iron works, cotton mills and sugar refineries.

Osaka is the site of a famous castle built in 1583 by Hideyoshi. The castle includes an enclosed palace considered the finest building in Japan, scene of the reception of foreign legations by Takayama Shoguns in 1867 and 1868.

Castle, shipyards, foundries as well as a network of railroads won't be overlooked by the B-29's new or later.

McFate continued to service and maintain communication lines with a field artillery unit on November 24." The citation is signed by Brigadier General A. R. Bolling, commanding.

Millions Switch To Mutton Suet Idea For Chest Cold Aid

Helps Break Up Colds; Local Congestion—Checks Coughing

Many mothers all over America are switching to this idea of getting fast relief for these chest cold miseries. They are simply following Grandma. For years she counted on mutton suet to help carry her home medication to do its pain-easing work on nerve ends in the skin. No wonder so many more now welcome Grandma's idea as improved by science—Penetro, with its multi-medicament formula in a base containing mutton suet—that acts both as counter-irritant and pain-reliever when you spread it on, and as a soothing aromatic when breathed in. And so today Penetro hurries along newer help in the old reliable way—help that eases painful misery, lessens coughing, loosens phlegm, soothes chest rawness—so that you can rest more comfortably and give nature a chance to restore vitality. That's why millions are switching to Penetro today—why druggists are recommending it, 25c, double supply 35c. For all your family's chest cold miseries, be sure you get white, easy-to-use Penetro.

Red Cross Worker And Local Marines On Iwo Jima Isle

Receive Word That All's Well With
Walt Fulkerson, And Marines
Lanigan And Critchlow

Out on the island of Iwo Jima, are four New Castle men, one of them a Red Cross worker and the other three U. S. Marines. There may be others, but these four have been heard from.

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Speed, from Mrs. Speed's son, Corp. Ralph Lanigan.

It was just a brief message, no doubt written during a slight lull in the battle for Iwo Jima. If time out to take one's second breath could be called a lull. He stated that he was well so far, and had seen Sgt. William Critchlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Critchlow, of Atkinson street, and that he was also all right. Sgt. Johnny Dean, is also on the island but no mention of him was made by Lanigan.

Word has also been received from Walter N. Fulkerson, of 415 E. Moody avenue, Red Cross man who is stationed on Iwo Jima with the Marines. His message like that of Lanigan was also brief.

However, folks who are wondering where their Red Cross money goes may be interested in knowing that it goes right up to the front in the hottest battle fronts, as proof of the letter from Fulkerson reveals.

Fewer Pneumonia Cases During Past Severe Winter

In spite of the severity of the winter, there were fewer reports of cases of pneumonia here during the past few months—a fact which would seem to bear out a theory that a severe winter is a healthy one.

"Shouldn't jump to conclusions," smiled Public Health Officer William A. Womer. "And, besides, just what do you mean by cold weather being healthy? Do you mean that you think cold weather kills the germs? Or do you think that people wrap their throats up tighter, and that's what keeps bad diseases away?"

Getting a little more serious, Dr. Womer considered the problem for a minute.

"The cold weather might have some effect in that it kept many people indoors, away from exposure to others who might have the germs. For example, I heard yesterday of a farmer whose children missed two months of school because the family had been snowed in. Those children were therefore not exposed to any pneumococci, the bacteria which cause lobar pneumonia."

The incidence varies widely at different times, Dr. Womer pointed out, and the variance couldn't be too dependent on the weather because pneumonia is found in army hospitals from the Aleutians to Burma.

"What will be holding pneumonia in check in the future will be sulfadiazine and penicillin," explained the health officer. "Before we had those discoveries, pneumonia had to run a certain course, with a crisis and everything else. Now, with these drugs, the time of illness is cut down, which means that fewer people will come in contact with a person sick with pneumonia, and which in turn means that fewer germs will be spread around to make other people sick."

But diehards who wish to believe that the weather was a prime factor in keeping the winter a "healthy one" can still keep on doing so, apparently, for the doctor admitted that he was "hedging" on the question.

Movie Strike May Spread In Nation

Hollywood's Film Industry Strike May Be Extended To Many Theatres Of U. S.

HOLLYWOOD, March 14—(INS)—Hollywood's film industry strike, in its third day, threatened to become nationwide today, with a new walkout that would close down the vast majority of the nation's vaudeville and motion picture theaters.

Richard A. Walsh, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, one of the two A. F. of L. unions involved in the jurisdictional dispute that precipitated the studio strike, sent telegrams to affiliate union officials, instructing them to "have members stand by for an order to stop handling or exhibiting any motion pictures made by any west coast producers."

Most of the country's stage hands and motion picture projection operators belong to the IATSE and a strike order from Walsh would darken every union house in the nation.

Walsh's move gave a new turn to the complicated and seething film industry's labor situation. The reason for his stand-by order was not clear—unless it was to forestall a move by the producers to yield to the demands of the painters, who called the strike to enforce a demand that they be recognized as the bargaining agent for the industry's 70-odd set designers.

The IATSE unions, contesting with the painters for the right to represent the set decorators, have supported the producers in the walkout.

Meanwhile, in the studios the strike gained momentum today with the several hundred members of the Screen Office Employees Guild joining the walkout through an indirect approach.

Roosevelt Gives Go Ahead Signal To Major Leagues

President Favors Night Games Also, Big Leagues To Open Next Month

By WILLIAM E. ZIMMERMAN
(International News Service Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(INS)—Professional baseball bounced ahead today toward the opening of its 1945 season following President Roosevelt's third wartime pinch hit for the national game.

The President came through in a supporting role once more when he told his news conference that he is all in favor of baseball as long as it does not use men better suited for more essential work in prosecution of the war.

Get 'Go' Signal
Mr. Roosevelt's remarks were taken as the most reassuring "go" signal that baseball has had since the President wrote his now historic letter to Commissioner Landis in 1942 which kept the game alive.

The President gave the green light for continuation of baseball when he was asked:

"Do you favor continuance of baseball this year?"

He replied with a question—why not?

Mr. Roosevelt said the Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators had given the right dope to reporters Monday in saying the Chief Executive favored night baseball. Griffith conferred at the White House with the President, giving him an annual pass. The President told him then he might be able to throw out the first ball at the season opener on April 16.

Likes Baseball
The Chief Executive told his news conference that he likes baseball and that it's all a question of whether it hurts the war effort to continue it and whether it keeps healthy individuals out of the armed services.

With the game now definitely back in the running, President Will H. Hays of the American League and Ford C. Frick of the National League will come to Washington tomorrow to confer with Defense Transportation Chief J. Monroe Johnson. They will seek further clarification in respect to exhibition games during the spring training season which just opened.

Umpires To Meet At Y Friday

Members of the Lawrence County Umpires Association will have an important meeting Friday night at the "Y" at 8 o'clock. It was announced today by Leo W. Hill, president.

Plans for a banquet of the association will be discussed. Also plans will be talked over for the coming summer baseball season. All who cannot attend Friday night are asked to contact President Hill at Phone 4444 after 5 o'clock.

FAIR OR FOUL

By LAWTON CARVER
INS Sports Editor

NEW YORK, March 14.—(INS)—H. LaGuardia may be an entrant in the baseball commissioner sweepstakes, the winner of which will get a seven-year contract at $50,000 a year. That is $10,000 more than he gets as mayor of New York, and the term in office is longer by three years, with renewal virtually automatic.

It sounds as though he is making a pass at the job when he gets on the air these days. He retraces the history of the national pastime, extols the clean sportsmanship of the game, declares war on gamblers who would defile the premises of ball yards and, by inference, likens himself in some ways to the late Judge Landis.

Could Do Worse
If the major league committees haven't already picked a commissioner in their secret meetings held in the dead of night back of a vacant old barn in Yalta so press and public will remain ignorant of their whereabouts and plans, they could do worse than bait a hook for our mayor and favorite radio commentator.

The man who is known affectionately and otherwise as Butch, The Hat, The Little Flower and The Little Frounder would take into the job all the prestige that goes with being a three-term mayor of the world's greatest city. Also, he may be out of work in the fall.

I have no way of knowing whether Butch has the slightest inclination toward the baseball commissionership, or whether baseball would find him acceptable. However, Butch is their man if they can get him. And he would do the greatest selling job for baseball of any guy they could select. All they would have to do to carry the game into the farthest points of the nation would be to equip him with a microphone.

His weekly broadcast in New York used to be something you studiously avoided on Sunday afternoon.

The mere thought of listening to a mayor in a weekly address to his beloved constituency seems repulsive.

Talks Baseball
Last Sunday when he started off by warning people that it wouldn't be long now until the windows would be shattered and a baseball would plop in your bowl of soup, but don't be annoyed—baseball is here again.

Then he stopped talking and the band swung into "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," and the mayor resumed with a history of the game and what he plans to do with the gamblers (1) have them thrown out of the ball parks, (2) put them in jail, (3) exchange identifications with other major league cities so that gamblers can't work the parks like a circuit, (4) eliminate telephones at the parks and (5) request that pitching selections not be given out in advance.

Really Getting Better
He talks over the air to Police Commissioner Valentine and to Washington officials as though they were in the room with him. He heckles and chides and threatens various people and passes out compliments aloft with his personal version of the way to make a tasty, nutritious broth for the family out of the neck bones from a deceased cow.

He also can't get over the startling fact that a copy of the Racing Post was found in the Brooklyn Dodger dressing room a couple of years ago when Larry MacPhail was head man there, and he warns MacPhail not to let this happen with the New York Yankees.

Anyway, whatever may come of him, I hope our Butch doesn't quit broadcasting. He's getting better all the time, and his listeners are awaiting the day when for variety he will croon a few numbers.

Hagg Is Planning Return To Sweden

Plans Made For Gunder Hagg To Fly Back To Sweden Some-time In April

NEW YORK, March 14.—(INS)—Hopes that Gunder Hagg, the swift Swede who has been running some sad fifties since his arrival in this country, will extend his stay longer than scheduled diminished Tuesday as plans were made for his departure by plane early in April.

Dan Ferris, AAU executive who brought Hagg and Haakon Lidman over, disclosed that the Scandinavians have made their last appearances in New York and that they will return to Sweden on schedule since Hagg's boss in Malmö insists they return by April 15.

Hagg and Lidman have left for Camp Endicott in Rhode Island where they will appear for the benefit of the Seabees. Today they will start for Chicago where Hagg will compete in the bankers' mile, his third mile run since his arrival. Hagg predicted that he will not break 4:10 during his stay.

Gunder Hagg To Run In Chicago

Swedish Miler Reaches Chicago For Race Saturday, Favored To Win

CHICAGO, March 14.—(INS)—Gunder Hagg, the Swedish track star, was due in Chicago today to complete his training for the Bankers' Mile in which he will be the favored entrant Saturday night in the Chicago relays.

Awaiting to greet him was his fiancée, Miss Dorothy Nortier, of Oakland, Calif.

Work Outdoors
Hagg, described by his more lyrical admirers as a "comet of light and speed," planned outdoor workouts as soon after his arrival as possible.

While "Gunder the Wonder" could find no real competition in America on his previous visit in the summer of 1943, he has not fared so well this time on indoor tracks, finishing last in New York March 3, and fifth in the Knights of Columbus Mile in Madison Square Garden last Saturday.

TROUT STOCKING IS UNDER WAY

Protector Clinton White Reports 700 Twelve-Inch Trout In Hickory Creek

Clinton B. White, fish protector of Lawrence county, reported to members of the Lawrence County Sportsman's association last night in the Neshannock hall, V.F.W. No. 315, that trout stocking is under way and that 700 of 2,000 trout put in Hickory Creek average 12 inches in length. The meeting was in charge of President Robert Lamore.

White reported already trout had been stocked in practically all county trout streams, excepting the Slippery Rock and they will be stocked at 11:30 a.m. Monday. High water delay stocking of that stream. Fishermen were requested to not fish for suckers in trout streams. No fishing will be allowed on trout streams between 5 p.m. April 14 and 5 a.m. April 15.

Some people were given to the association for Deshon Hospital annex. However, the supply was not sufficient and a drive to procure more fishing equipment and to arrange for spring and summer trips will be arranged.

The State Game Commission may be required to close quail hunting next fall because of the absence of cover during the winter, according to Game Protector Frank L. Coen who discussed hunting conditions.

Nick Cassillo, well known outdoorsman and educator, delivered an interesting address of his trip years ago to Alaska where he watched the salmon traps and shot eagles when there was a bounty on the eagles.

CAMPFIRE CORNER

CAP REMEMBERS HIS MEAL TICKET

When I was forced to go to a hospital for an operation several weeks ago the Missus and I decided to put Cap, the Labrador, in a training kennel for a few weeks. There he would take a finishing course in the retrieving specialties of which I had taught him the fundamentals at north woods lakes last summer and on Red River valley ducks in the fall. Between hospital and a convalescent period at home, it was several weeks before I saw the black rascal again. He had passed the puppy stage in the meantime, having just rounded out the 12-month period of life which makes a full-fledged dog out of a pup. I wondered if he'd forgotten me.

This doubt was speedily dispelled when the Captain bounded out of his exercise pen and greeted me with all the abandon of a streak of black lightning on the loose. "Now that he's worked that out of his system I'll put him through his paces," the trainer announced, after the boisterous welcome had extended five minutes or so without a pause. In the meantime the trainer had acquired a couple of clipped wing tame pigeons.

Knows Where He Stands
"Heel," he commanded Cap, and Cap heeled. "Hup," the trainer led us to the nearby ridge of a small hill. "Hup," the trainer ordered, and Cap sat down, expectantly eyeing the pigeons. The trainer threw the birds out, one far to the left, into a dense stand of winterkilled weeds, the other to the right, where it landed near a small tree.

Cap waited all attemble for the signal to fetch, and as the trainer waved to the left he dashed out for the first bird. I was standing some 20 feet behind and to the right of the trainer. Cap found the pigeon with little trouble, but instead of returning it to his master, he ran directly to me and placed the bird in my hands without any of the try-to-take-it-away-from-me playfulness he exhibited when a pup.

The trainer was left waiting at the church, as it were. He was somewhat miffed, but calling Cap to him, he went through the pupping process again and this time waved to the right, where the Labrador located the second pigeon. He ducked around the trainer and returned it to me, wagging his tail and laughing, if dogs do laugh, at the trainer's discomfiture. "That's all for today," the trainer decided. He's a kindly fellow or I might have suspected Cap was in for a little corporal punishment when the two were alone again. I know now where I stand with the Captain.

Tri-County Track Meet Discussed

Date Of May 19 Selected By Class B Schools For First Annual Track Meet

At the recent basketball tournament held at Union Township High school, the members of the Tri-County Athletic Conference discussed the staging of a first annual track and field meet on the date of May 19.

The place for the holding of the first Tri-County sponsored, track meet will be up for settlement when the conference members gather May 9 at the Kaufman Hotel in Zelienople for the annual meeting. At the Zelienople meeting will be all principals and coaches of the Class B schools of Lawrence, Butler and Mercer counties.

Vote Player Awards
The conference also voted during the Union tourney to buy individual awards for each of the players on the championship Wampum High team, the first tourney winners. Principal Chandler B. McMillan, of Bessemer High, also president of the Tri-County Conference will go to Mars, Pa., shortly to present to the Mars High officials, the handsome trophy cup that goes to the Mars team for winning the 1944 championship of the conference.

Moore Will Bid For Vault Honors

CHICAGO, March 14.—(INS)—Some of the nation's topflight vaulters will hold a good share of the spotlight Saturday night in the running of the annual Chicago relays at the Chicago stadium.

Bidding for the pole vault title won last year by Ensign Cornelius Warmerdam will be the winners of all the major indoor vaulting crowns, including National Champion Billy Moore of western Michigan.

While Moore, the Central collegiate conference champion of the high stick event, as well as the American titleholder, will be favored in the relays' vault field, he will get expert competition from the Western Conference indoor champions, Johnny Schmidt of Ohio State and Bob Phelps of Illinois, and from the Army's entry, Corp. Milt Padway, of the New York Engineers club.

Three Veterans On Penn State Nine

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 14.—Only three hold-overs are numbered among the approximately 40 candidates who have reported for the 1945 football team at Penn State. Coach Joe Bedenk said the team will work indoors during the month of March.

Two of the three veterans are 18-year-olds who may be inducted into the armed services before the season opens. Art Bohard of Frankville, a portlander, was unbeaten in two starts on the mound last summer. Ivan Kline, Frewsburg, N. Y., was his battery mate.

The third hold-over is Glenn Smith of Mt. Carmel, an ex-serviceman who played left field last year. Smith captained the wrestling team this winter and won the eastern intercollegiate 155-pound championship.

Softball Loop For Industrials

Plans are under way for an industrial softball league here this summer, it was announced, with only industrial plants eligible to participate. A six or eight team league is a possibility.

The following are invited to attend the first meeting when it is called: Johnson Bronze, United Engineering, Shenango Pottery, Radiator Works, Lockley Machine Shop, Aluminum Company, Spring Works, Universal Pottery, Refractories.

BY HAROLD GRAY

"PUBLIC OPINION is a mighty weapon in any controversy over the changing of laws governing our every day life. It is evident in every attempt to set up new rules for us to go by. It is our way of informing the lawmakers of how the majority of our people want to be governed," writes Seth Myers, Northwest Pennsylvania Sportsman. "It applies especially to drastic proposal to change laws governing hunting and fishing. It has become widely known among Pennsylvania's organized sportsmen that major changes in fish or game laws should wait for the war's end. The state federation of sportsmen's clubs and the sportsmen every where are agreed that changes of fish or game codes should be held up until the men in service can be back to have their voice in the changes to be made. It is the least the general public sportsmen and lawmakers can do for our million men in service. One of the many bills in the current session of the general assembly, having to do with hunting and fishing changes, is known as Senate Bill 430 and it is looked upon by organized sportsmen as much too drastic a change to be taken lightly. It provides for the abolition of the present board of fish commissioners and in its place we would have a new Pennsylvania fish commission. It is presented as an amendment to the present fish law but when carefully studied it appears to be more of a complete new one.

"It proposes to create a new commission with one commissioner from each of the eight divisions of the state, who would elect annually, a president and vice president. It would have an executive director similar to that office in the game commission, instead of the present commissioner of fisheries. The director would be elected by the members of the commission whose duty it would also be to establish his amount of salary, and the power of dismissing him at will. The present commissioner of fisheries would serve in the capacity of executive director only until such time as the commission would name his successor. There are some other questionable provisions in the bill of which the legislative committees of state sportsmen are afraid. It is the general opinion that some where, the gentleman is hidden in the wood pile of whom clean sportsmen want no part. The sportsmen here on the home front are not asleep at their posts, and having in mind the welfare of their brothers in service are confident that public opinion will serve to caution promoters of this bill to kill it in committee.

Braves field in Boston will be equipped with lights after the war but officials will insist that only 14 night games will be played per season. . . . Tommy Henrich, Yankee outfielder, coached the Sault Ste. Marie Coast Guard basketball squad this season. . . . Vernon Stephens, father of Vern, Jr., St. Louis Browns' shortstop, is a policeman in Long Beach, Calif. . . . Some people exclaim "Damn it, when they see cigarette ashes on a rug but never talk that way when they see a hole in a sock." . . . Vince Barvia, 17-year-old center, who shattered every Notre Dame individual basketball record, has been inducted into the Navy at East Chicago. . . . 'Tis about time for the managers of City Leagues of 1944 to hold a pow-wow and decide what's what for 1945.

Chicago Cubs To Go Through Game

FRENCH LICK, Ind., March 14.—(INS)—Optimist Charley Grimm, manager of the Chicago Cubs, announced today he would stage the first game of the 1945 training season next Friday. He even selected the line-ups for the two teams, though at the time he had only an even dozen players from whom to select. He got around this embarrassment by taking the first base spot on the "B" team for himself and impressing into service the three coaches and a couple of schoolboy hitchhikers who turned up at the training camp fortuitously.

GASTON POST HAS BIRTHDAY EVENT

Twenty-Sixth Anniversary Of Organization Of Legion Observed Tuesday Evening

Tuesday evening was a memorable one with Perry S. Gaston Post, American Legion, when the 26th birthday anniversary of the post was commemorated and Past Commanders of the post were honored. Thirteen of the Past Commanders were present, and spoke briefly on the outstanding events of their regime and of the early history of the American Legion in New Castle.

Special guests included L. B. Round and C. L. McMillen, Distinguished Certificate Holders of the Post. First Lt. Joe Boyd, who has recently returned home from overseas, where he served with the Air Forces; and Sgt. Kenneth Foster and Sgt. Jeannette Sheets, of the U. S. Army Recruiting force here. The post went over the top in membership. Senior Vice Commander Leon A. Drumm reported, having exceeded last year's membership by three, the membership now standing at 446. The post hopes to be over the 500 mark by the date of the visit of the National Commander, Edward N. Schieffelin on April 10, plans for which were announced by General Chairman C. C. Sweeney last evening.

At the close of the evening's program, lunch and refreshments were served by the K.P.s.

Business Girls World-Wide Banquet

Members of the business girls clubs of the Y.W.C.A. joined Tuesday evening with girls from all over the world at a nation-wide observance at the Y.W.C.A.

Following the serving of a delicious dinner, Miss Jean Nunn, chairman of the program committee, introduced Roger Jewett, executive vice president of the Greater New Castle Association, as the speaker of the evening. He spoke on the subject, "Reaching Security by Growth and Action for World Cooperation."

Mr. Jewett stated that "Individual security depends upon doing the thing he likes to do best, not necessarily at which he may make the most money. In reemployment needs we must have an understanding of the problems of other people in our community and in the world."

"We need to bring in more industries to New Castle, which means that we need to add to the attractiveness of our community in recreation, housing and transportation."

"It will be our business to build up living standards for this country, rather than to decrease our standards," Mr. Jewett concluded by adding, "We must build for ourselves to world security."

An enjoyable period of group singing was led by Miss Esther Gibbons, with her sister, Mrs. Emma Gibbons Richards as accompanist. Miss Jessica, chairman of the Business Girls department of the Y.W.C.A., presided at the dinner meeting.

Miss Mary VanDyke read a prayer that was used by the business girls all over the world at the nation-wide celebration.

Members of the Elm Street branch of the Y.W.C.A. prepared and served the banquet.

Representatives of various business and professional clubs of the city were guests at the event.

Miss Breslin Is Guest Of Lions

Red Cross Executive Tells About Work Of Red Cross Among Troops In Current War

New Castle Lions Club heard of some of the fine work being done by the American Red Cross in the current war, when they were addressed by Miss Elizabeth Breslin, executive secretary of the Lawrence County Chapter.

Miss Breslin outlined some of the rights and privileges of the discharged veterans and of how the Red Cross has assisted many of them with their claims. The chapter also acts as liaison agent between the family back home and the man in the field, besides other services to the troops. The Red Cross having been delegated to this task by the War and Navy departments.

She told of the service that the Lawrence County Chapter has rendered in furnishing 6,000 pints of blood for blood plasma, which is turned over to the War and Navy Departments and is administered by them to the men at the fighting fronts, free of all charges.

In addition, she told of the chapter shipping out 2,315 knitted garments to the armed forces, and 1,920 knitted and 8,145 other garments for war relief purposes.

Guests from the service included T-Sgt. Vic O'Brien, of McKeesport, former employee of the G. C. Murphy Company, who served in Normandy and Brittany, and who contracted arthritis after being injured in Belgium. He was at Bastogne during the terrific fighting there. From Deshon Annex were: Cpl. O. R. Bowden, of Princeton, W. Va., who was wounded near St. Lo while serving with the 83rd Division; and Pfc. E. C. Reimels, of Middleborough, Mass., who suffered injuries to his spine in a 20-foot fall while landing on the Cherbourg peninsula. He served with the 26th Yankee Division.

Price Survey Shows Better Compliance Than In March 1944

"Almost an 80 per cent improvement over last year," was the verdict of the Price Panel Board after completing the March price survey which marked one year of checking up on local grocery prices.

Out of the 248 stores covered by the survey, only five price violations were found, the board announced this morning. These were mostly on sugar, and the overcharge was only one cent. The largest number of violations still consist of failures to label grades of meat and to post ceiling prices, according to the survey report, which shows 21 violations of this sort.

After issuing license warnings, the local board will refer the cases of non-compliance to the district office.

"I don't know whether you can read this or not. I'm writing this on the very peak of Suribachi. The battle for this 'gem of the Pacific' is still in full stride. Our Japanese audience liked our road show a great deal. In fact, I'd say we really 'slayed 'em!'"

Margaret Curtis McKay Writes Story For March Junior Red Cross Journal

Mrs. McKay, whose reputation as a short story writer is well known, has been a frequent visitor to New Castle.

In addition to cuttings by man, nature and fire together destroy an average of 7,000,000,000 trees each year in the United States. Insects and plant diseases account for four billion of these; fires for three billion more.
